The reason many people don't like Americans is because of people like you, Markie, who try to impose their silly, uninformed and illiterate views on everyone. You and the rest of the Inferior Five have irreparably trashed this newsgroup with your incessant flaming, and it is being read by people in other countries. How do you think that makes Americans look to the rest of the world? Not that you care, sociopath.

5655. Woger back in Northern Regional Jail again?

Woger hasn't done his usual drive-by shooting of the newsgroups this morning, so I assume he's had to report to Northern Regional Jail early, in order to make up for getting last Saturday off.

Once Woger is released on Monday morning, he'll show up on NIM Busters to crow about how much good sex he gets over the weekend, while his nemesis Lloyd Davies has to spend the weekend alone.

Now we know who Woger's "high class models" really are.

"And that fat hog Pam shouldn't caterwaul with her hunchbacked fatass mommy with the Xtian band anymore, she caused more stray dogs to come around that run-down shack that Ovis is housed in. Another Xtian hypocrite, that radio station is a known haven for child abuse in the mound town. She is a fucking idiot." -- AB8MQ in message <akd8bpkce8@pita.alt.net>

no dumbass YOU don't get the point Part 15 wasn't designed for experimenting, it was designed for unwanted field emissions like what a computer radiates off, or off type accepted transmitter. Cordless phones and BPL are two other thing govern by Part 15 but if you read ALL of part 15 that is what part 15 is for. If you want to experiment get an experimental license. Don't come on here and claim "oh, he's breaking the law, now the FCC is going to tighten the rules governing part 15, in reality they are NOT going to change the rules because one person breaks the rules.You seem to lack understanding on that and I'm not going to debate it with someone who has no understanding of it.
Because I'll tell you what a number of people has broken Part 15 over the years and has been busted by the FCC (see Dugan V FCC, Dugan was running a pirate radio station on the FM broadcast band and was busted by the FCC who claimed he was in violation of Part 15, the US Court of Appeal up held it) Did the FCC change the rule after Dugan or any other pirate on the FM band after the FCC busted them for violating Part 15??
Answer NO, the rule has remained the same before and after all those pirates has been busted. Your claim that the FCC will tighten the rules because I might be violating Part 15 doesn't hold water. I suggest before you get on here and claim something that you better do some deep research into the matter.

Because you can't get an experimental license for Broadcasting, many people has tried.

The ISP removed me because they believed and was told by the individuals who complainted that the material was "child pornography" which it is not, The second problem is "obscenity" it has always been ruled that only a court can deiced what is obscene, secondly the ISP has individuals posting material on Adultfinders.com, blogs and other places on the web which could be consider obscene, so what apply to one person should apply for all, in this case it does not. Thirdly it is a common practice amoung ISP to warn a User that they are violation of their TOS, I recieved no such warning, which now can be consider a "bad Business practice" since the vast majority of ISP's do warn their users before removing them from the web. Fourth, the Courts has ruled in Verizon V RIAA that a ISP doesn't have control of what's on a users computer, and that and ISP is nothing more then a conduit.(In Verzion V RIAA, the RIAA sued Verzion fro not handing over the names of individuals who were sharing music on P2P networks. The Court ruled that Verzion can't be held accountable for copyright infringement since the material was on their users computer and not on directly on their server . Verzion and ISP were nothing more then conduits, like the phone company and had really no control over the content.) The CDA also protects internet service providers of libel for the content their users put out. The General rule of thumb on the web is, if you don't like what's on someone website then don't go there. Some of the individuals visited the site long before complaining and had the chose not to gom their if they are offended by it. But as for obscentiy goes as the Supreme court stated "just because one person is offended by the material doesn't not mean it need to be banned"

That IP address belongs to illinois.net, an organization which lists its purpose as follows:

"The Illinois Century Network (ICN) is a telecommunications backbone providing high speed access to data, video, and audio communication in schools and libraries, at colleges and universities, to public libraries and museums, and for local government and state agencies."

Just like Wiseman, you have to go somewhere else (Charleston) to post.
Did your friend kick you off his CTI connection at 12.156.121.130 or did CTI?

Todd will never get a waiver because the FCC doesn't consider granting a waiver with the single purpose of playing shitty songs over and over experimental.

Now, if Todd would show Omega One was a radio experiment to see how many people he could make puke listening to the radio, he'd have that waiver.

Now Markie, whenever someone posts something, in less than ten minutes time, Markie has followed up to it with some mis-spelled mindless nonsence. There's no way he could have a job.

Since you play the same shitty songs over & over & over. All you need to do to is make one Pod-cast and it should be good twenty-four hours a day, 365 days a year.

These type of used surplus microphones are readily available on eBay and at hamfests at reasonable cost. They have a high audio output and are very rugged.

There's a Wiseman in Tygart Valley Regional Jail, but the web site won't give any additional info right now because of server maintenance work. It does say that Wiseman is 5'2" tall, and that sounds about right for Woger's height. I will be checking http://www.wvrja.com/ from time to time until it starts working again. I wonder if they cut Woger's long, greasy hair when he went to jail?

You're right. Looking at the time stamps on your original message and Markie's follow-up, it took him exactly 14 minutes to respond. It would have been less than 10 minutes but most of the time was used in figuring out how to spell "at."

So who's the stalker now, Markie?

Speaking of which, Markie...you advised me to "get a life or get laid"
a while back. Was that a proposition? Pardon me for being slow on the uptake but, unlike you, I'm not used to getting hit on by males.

True. However, when you post on an open message board you open yourself up to any and all who wish to either support or rebut your postings. RRAP and similar boards are not held to the same standards as private e-mail.

In other words, Toad, if you want to play lumberjack, learn to handle your end of the log.

Over here in Marshall, IL, somebody can be heard jamming the crap out of Omega One Radio. It's probably that guy who said he would jam you in another newsgroup message. Being as you are part 15, you have no right to complain about jamming because you have to protection from it.

You should just pull the plug. Nobody can hear your station any more anyway.

ROFL, He likes using two letter words because he has a 50% chance of spelling the correctly.

It took Markie 37 minutes to follow-up to you on this one. Mark must be a little bit constipated today, he's normally a lot faster than that.

You should team up with Markie then and have him provide the Pod-cast.

Todd, you could take a break from the music and do like a little mini talk show. Maybe take questions off RRAP and answer them on air.

Or maybe just do a daily two hour monologue on how the FCC is unfair and how they're trying to silence your free speech, or how people got you booted off your ISP's, or how you're going to explain to the FCC that 15,000 microvolts at thirty meters really is kilowatt. LOL! You're hilarious.

The only way anyone can have you TOSsed is to complain. The ISP then looks at what they are complaining about and, whaddaya know, Toad IS sending virtual kiddie porn through their data stream! Bye, bye, Toad.

ISPs are very sensitive to that kind of stuff and tend to err on the side of caution. Miller decision or not, they don't want to possibly expose themselves to legal liability and the few bucks they make off of you every month isn't nearly enough to justify the risk (in their minds).

It's up to the ISP to actually determine whether you have committed a violation of their Terms of Service (in other words, committed breach of contract). If two ISPs independently came to the conclusion that the stuff you were putting through their data streams was a TOS violation, there had to be a good reason.

You read the First Amendment like you read Part 15 - it means what you want it to mean, not what it says.

The reason many people don't like Americans is because of people like you, Markie, who try to impose their silly, uninformed and illiterate views on everyone. You and the rest of the Inferior Five have irreparably trashed this newsgroup with your incessant flaming, and it is being read by people in other countries. How do you think that makes Americans look to the rest of the world? Not that you care,

You're right. Looking at the time stamps on your original message and Markie's follow-up, it took him exactly 14 minutes to respond. It would have been less than 10 minutes but most of the time was used in figuring out how to spell "at."

So who's the stalker now, Markie?

Speaking of which, Markie...you advised me to "get a life or get laid"
a while back. Was that a proposition? Pardon me for being slow on the uptake but, unlike you, I'm not used to getting hit on by males.

ROFL, He likes using two letter words because he has a 50% chance of spelling the correctly.

It took Markie 37 minutes to follow-up to you on this one. Mark must be a little bit constipated today, he's normally a lot faster than that.

Sorry, dude. You're wrong again. You can't do a damn thing about interference, because Part 15 says that you have to accept it. Here's a direct quote. Let's see you weasel your way around the following:

--(begin quote)--

15.5 General conditions of operation.

(a) Persons operating intentional or unintentional radiators shall not be deemed to have any vested or recognizable right to continued use of any given frequency by virtue of prior registration or certification of equipment, or, for power line carrier systems, on the basis of prior notification of use pursuant to ï¿½ 90.63(g) of this chapter.

(b) Operation of an intentional, unintentional, or incidental radiator is subject to the conditions that no harmful interference is caused and *that interference must be accepted that may be caused by the operation *of an authorized radio station, by another intentional or unintentional *radiator, by industrial, scientific and medical (ISM) equipment, or by *an incidental radiator.

--(end quote)--

You'd better take a close look at 15.15(b) above, where I put asterisks in front of the important portion. The paragraph clearly states that, if someone else puts an intentional radiator on the air, and it causes interference to you, the law says "tough shit, BITCH WHORE NAZI." (It doesn't say it quite that way, but I wanted to put it into words you'd understand.)

Capiche?

While most people can unscramble Decatur and Charleston and locate them, Illiopolis could be a problem if you are not familiar with small towns in Illinois. It's just west of Decatur. I'm not quite sure how far though as I never had occasion to go there. I once lived in Niantic, a small town between Decatur and Illiopolis.

Bill included rec.radio.amateur.misc in the list of newsgroups he posted the original message to. Since rram seems to be reserved for flames, discussion of amateur radio is evidently off-topic.

Oh ,I see, the Professor is selling (partly illegal)CB Power amplifiers.
Probably no solder smoke on his premises ......just carton boxes filled with equipment ,ready for shipment to truckers' watering holes.

Bill , I enjoy listening to your podcasts ....keep up the good work.
Just ignore the above junk seller ,who apparently is NOT capable to produce any civilised and intelligent response.

4O3T QSL STATUS. Ranko, YT6A, 4O3T QSL Manager, reports [edited]:
"As you all know, 4O3T did about 120,000 QSOs. After the festival, we needed some time for collecting photos and designing 9 different QSL cards. Now QSLs are in the printing process. As our QSL policy demands absolutely ONLY EXPERIENCED HAMs are in our QSLing process, it means that we will need hundreds and hundreds of hours for carefully checking of each QSL received and replaying. 4O3T QSL team will make it on highest level possible.
Delivering of all QSLs will start from beginning of October and will take some time. We will display on WEB all information about callsigns, whom and when we send QSLs, and from whom we received QSLs. All bureau QSLs will be sent in two months, too. Thanks to all of you for working us and for understanding. I understand that QSL card is what you only need, but hope you understand that it has to take some time.....73."

While most people can unscramble Decatur and Charleston and locate them, Illiopolis could be a problem if you are not familiar with small towns in Illinois. It's just west of Decatur. I'm not quite sure how far though as I never had occasion to go there. I once lived in Niantic, a small town between Decatur and Illiopolis.

Dee, N8UZE

I guess "most" people could unscramble them, yes, but then, "most" people spell correctly, thus making unscrambling unnecessary.
With Mark, who can't spell a two letter word correcectly, I have neither your pity or understanding.

Interesting... Mark can't spell to save his life. Maybe he is retarded, not to mention being just a plain harelip jackass.

Moving on...

Being from Indiana and knowing many people in Hendricks County, I have been told that these accusations against Jay are probably true. Also, a ham I know that works for a law enforcement agency has said that this person should come forward and file a report with the police.

As for Mark, he is just another no-code tech in the Midwest. We will see if he shows up at Dayton next year. I would be glad to give him some free spelling lessons.

Funny TrACEy... why did you change your name? Were you ashamed of being a redneck that was named after a woman? Or did the guys down there in Spencer Indiana just plain pick on you alot?

Tell Chris N9GJC that MC says hello. Maybe next time im in Bloomington Ill drop in and say hello on simplex to you two hillbillies'.

Chris actually is a decent guy, but you TrACEy are scum. Racist, inbred, hill jack scum. You should be really proud of being a KKK member. Ill bet you don't march the street of Bloomington with those sheets on do you? The blacks at IU would rip you a new ass hole.

So, we have now established that Jay Wright is a child molester and that TrACEy is a racist redneck. And also that Mark can't spell and has some sort of disability in his brain.

Have a great Sunday everyone!

Every on-topic post helps rram, even if only a little bit. Keep these posts up. I added soldersmoke to my bashpodder list, and will be listening to the podcast to see what it's all about. Number 32 sounds very interesting so far.

No. For not realizing just how twisted you yourself are. You are a

We knew you were a sociopath, Markie, but this is a new low even for

You are so fixated on Steve, you pathetic little loser, that you see him in every post that doesn't look like it was typed by a homosexual orangutang and that dares to try to elevate the conversation beyond the level of grade-school sniping.

There are plenty of us on here who would like nothing more than to confine the discussion to what this newsgroup's title promises - amateur radio. People like you ruin things for everyone.

Prima Facie Illegal. They can't be sold IN the United States, or TO Sez you, you smarmy, liar. One of the posts I sent to the FCC was from the guy who makes the units, claiming they were for CB.

By the way, This "newbie" got his first ham license in 1952, and his first Commercial License in 1955.

No but there IS federal law that do protect ISP from "liability" including the CDA which states an ISP can not be held liable what their user post or send. I really suggest you read other laws beside the court case of Miller V Californmia. Try Verizon Vs RIAA (in Verzion v RIAA, the US Court of Appeal stated that an ISP is not responsible for what their users transmit and was not liable for copyright infringment.
citing CDA and the DMCA safe habour provision.

The problem is however, In Illinois according to my lawyer, a ISP is consider a public Utlility and is such regulated by the state. Like I said before when you suggested that I start my own ISP, the reason is the city limits how many ISP are allowed the town (just like do with cable) and you have to obtain a permit which cost thousands and thousands of dollars. Internet here is regulated by both the city and the state.

Yes, that's true, as far as it goes. But that is a "blanket" protection in the sense that the ISP is not expected to monitor everything that comes through its data stream because that wouldn't be possible due to the sheer volume of data. However, when something specific is brought to an ISPs attention the blanket protection is compromised. When notified of a possible TOS violation the ISP has a duty to check it out and act if action is warranted. Failure to act on a specific allegation could expose the ISP to liability for failure to exercise due diligence.

That's interesting. I did know that some jurisdictions were beginning to consider ISPs as public utilities subject to state and local regulation but I wasn't aware that Illinois was one of them. Sounds to me like typical politics - make something illegal unless you obtain a permit, then charge up the arse for the permits. And I would bet that most of the permits go to large companies who have the financial wherewithal to bribe the politicians who grant the licenses. Damn politicians get you coming and going.

That does open a very interesting can of worms, though. Since ISPs in Illinois are considered public utilities, I would think that it would be extremely difficult to TOS someone. After all, the electric company is a public utility and they can't arbitrarily terminate your service just because they don't like you; about the only thing they can terminate service for is nonpayment of the bill.

But your station is not an authorized station. It is an intentional radiator, and it must accept all interference it experiences.

I'm glad to see you calling the FCC's attention to your illegal Part 15 operation and even giving them the exact frequency on which their monitoring stations should listen.

You're just like the talking bird who gets out of its owner's house and sits in the yard yelling "Here kitty, kitty, kitty!"

In message <1157253137.159768.267560@74g2000cwt.googlegroups.com>, N9OGL bragged about his radio station with the claim, "the stations far away say there is no signal but the audio is really good."

Interesting take on this. The local store has one little cabinet and a part of a rack. They're hardly pandering to those experimenters.

I look at it as more that what they direction they decided to head into won't generate all that much repeat business. How many times will customers come in to buy new cell phones? Now that the market is becoming saturated, and cell phone vendors are becoming as common as pizza takeout joints, It is hard to blame people like me, who UsED to spend a good bit of money there.

Interestingly enough, while visiting Ottawa this summer, I walked into a electronics store (a division of Circuit city, but in a mall environment) and was shocked to find several walls of parts!

> I bet I've been RS 4 times in a month, each time buying $10 or less in

I think that relates to my comments above. Wanna do a lot of small purchases every month, or sell a cell phone once every two years to a customer. There are a lot of experimenters out there. They now buy at Mouser or the like.

Or that Circuit city store. Of course I haven't seen one of those places in the States! 8^(

Yeah.... I got better looking.... ;^)

I think to sum up the Radio Shack experience, they were originally the type of store that sold a little bit to lots of customers. When they switched to cell phones, they were trying to sell a very little to large numbers of customers. How many times a year does a person buy a cell phone?

As they marginalized their previous customer base, and now that most cell phones are replacements, not new buys, the result was inevitable.

I'll miss 'em too. Got several kit radios, a capacitive discharge ignition kit. several antennas, untold numbers of parts. Stereo speakers, tape recorders. I used to spend thousands there.

But over the past several years, they've been trying to make sure I don't miss them very much.

Irelavant No staion is required to accept intentional interference from another station after any other staion operating nearby is also unauthorized

Omega one must accept interfernce from say an electric utility but not from who avowed prupose to the jam Omega one. OTOH Omega is screwed if c oercail happened to have minor sput tnear it as long as that spur was small enough and the rules of the comercail broadcast station

the FCC is quite clear NO one is legaly to accept intetnional interfence proving can be problematic

And, it appears not to comply with several specific FCC regulations:

- It has gain through the CB frequencies (violates 97.317 (b)) and is thus not eligible for certification, which is required for amps operating below 144 MHz. The FCC may be about to relax or eliminate the 97.317 rules about external amps operating in this frequency range, but for the moment this reg is still part of the law.

- Its second- and third-harmonic distortion levels are roughly 10 dB too high to meet the -43 dBc requirement (violates 97.307 (d)).

You could too if you weren't a jail bird.

Now what do you want to hear on Omega one. I'm taking requests.

Maybe some ham in your area can help you learn it. Then, on the other hand, maybe they know you and would never want to hear you on HF. If that's the case, I guess you're on your own.

SC

5892. Mark, Why do you follow-up to every post?

You really are a retard Mark. I was hoping I would be wrong about that, but I am not. After seeing the crap you spewed this weekend the not doubt.

You follow up to every post, even if it isn't to you or about you, and even when you haven't got a clue what they're talking about.

You toss out bullshit all the time. You destroyed RRAP. I wanted to blame CB'ers, but you're the blame. You and AB8QM.

Besides playing the same Crap over and over constantly, Todd doesn't even change the order of the shitty songs much. What a terrible disk jockey.

He could at least have a little variety in the order he plays the shit.

I know why you're upset Mark, Your life is a complete failure, you're stupid, you're not a real ham, and then just four days ago, you found out Woger was seeing another man and you thought your gay affection would be enough to satisfy him. so now you're devastated, & confused, and thinking everyone on the internet is me.

Maybe request Todd play an old love song on Omega One that you and Roger used enjoy when you were in love. "Just an old-fashioned Gay love song"

I think Lloyd might make a pass at you now that Roger's out of the way. Do you like pizza?

I have to plop this one in there....

I have been reading your stupid shit for over 3 years and I cannot take it anymore!

He is right, you truly are an idiot, Mark. A liar about your military history (which is a federal offense) and a liar about every thing else you do. You are a moron, a waste of human skin and you are an oxygen thief.

Go get a life and get the hell off of these threads. You spread like an infection.

You can't put together a sentence. You can't spell and the world knows that you are a retard. You ruin every thread all over the internet, with you stupid and off topic remarks, which are litterally insane in nature.

To keep this short, so you can understand it Mark. Your a fu&#%#$ fag who is nothing but a CB'er at best. You are a discrace to everything that you do (which is not much). You suck ass and nobody wants to listen to or read you stupid ass, jerk off remarks. You never reply to anything with any real reponse to there post. Nothing you say makes any sense at all. Not even a little bit. Everyone struggles to understand what in the hell you ARE trying to say.

Nobody wants to listen to you at all. In fact, I would be happy to think that most people would enjoy NOT ever hearing from you again. You have a post in every single god damn forun on here. GET A FU&^$%& LIFE! Go cut down trees, sell your stupid wood and waste your money on some other hobby. Maybe you could take up suicide as a past time!

God bless you and the idiots you hang around with.

Code testing should NOT be thrown away. It is the one thing that keeps SOME of the lazy bastards off of HF. At least off HF legally! I hated to see the 13 and 20 WPM requirements lifted. I took the 20 WPM right off the bat. 5 is easy... there are 6 and 7 year olds, and 60 and 70 year olds who pass that. 13 isn't hard either. 20 just takes some practice. I went from no license, to extra in 1 year... when I was 15 years old. I went from knowing no code at all, to 20 WPM in 3 weeks of 2 hours per day listening to code tapes and copying the ARRL bulletins.

Code is a tradition. And don't try and compare code to slavery or something completely ignorant like that. They are apples and oranges.

Now, im sure you will all want to attack me for what I have said. So, go ahead. It doesn't matter to me. I have my extra. So, I really don't care either way. Quite honestly, I don't even operate anymore. The mentality of the people on HF has dropped so badly, I hardly ever operate except to speak to a family member once a week that is in Canada. And I talk on 440 simplex to a couple people here locally.

Reading this newsgroup reminds me of why I don't get on HF anymore. 75 meters and this newsgroup and many things in common.

Hello everyone!

On the HF transceiver, for the digi-assissted modes (SSTV, RTTY, PSK, ecc) I use a classic TxRx - to - PC coupler that is a pair of separation transformers on line IN and OUT from the PC to the corresponding SPK and MIC on the transceiver. The PTT is taken from the COM port via an optoisolator.
My problem is to use this coupler - or another one properly designed- with my Yaesu FT60 UHF/VHF handheld. As the Mic line expects an electret mike and the PTT is "leaky", the "normal" coupler does not work.
Can anyone provide me a schematic? - I hate to buy small, homebrewable adapters at incredibly high prices, so please no commercial links.

Livius, YO5QCD

Previously: AB8QM <----
Timothy R Cookson

When Tim realized how close his call was to AB8MQ, he had it changed

In message <acg2jt$b6q$3@pita.alt.net>, AB8MQ issues a West Virginia

The above transcript is an URBAN LEGEND.

It 100% WILL NOT work as stated.

The full story of this particular amusing Urban Legend is at the URL below...

http://www.snopes.com/autos/techno/keyless.asp

Wireless Entry devices for passenger cars and trucks use RF.
They do not use audio. Also, the RF signal from a keychain Auto Remote Entry device WILL NOT carry atop a cellular telephone transmitted signal.

If this method were true and did work as stated, hackers would sit in parking lots with scanners and computers getting the embedded signals off of people's keychains and the result is vehicle Grand Thefts would increase 5000% and nobody would want to own any type of a wireless entry system on their car or truck.

I am amazed that Bell stated this, as with his background in ham radio and broadcast electronics, he should have known this was a crock of chicken beaks....

That is Woger's photo, and at first he even admitted it. After that, he changed his story and made the claim that several different people posted that photo on Yahoo. It's a lot like Woger's claims about the visit that Dave Heil made to his house. The story kept on changing as time went by.

Nobody (and I mean NOBODY) believes your story. That's why you can still go to the Cocksucker's Lounge at NIM Busters and see a little, animated character peeing on your photo. It's at http://nimbusters.com/forum/forum.php?board=10 - a place I visit whenever I start to doubt that there is a God.

Hey Slow, check with Val Germann. He had all the warm fuzzy good

I remember when RRAP was respectable, then Mark morgan came back and Woger found someone he could pick on with ease, like taking candy from a baby. It doesn't help for Mark to admit he doesn't have anything against homos, and Woger teases him about it. I have to admit I've got caught up in it too when the only reason I came back was to try to make the group respectable again and try to get usenetter hams to support keeping the code requirement. But with Mark here now and not enough good folk left in the group, I'll probably just bow out, and the stupid and lazy can take over ham radio.

I remember Marks stupid ass posts in the late 1990's and when he left I now him, Llooydie, and Woger have wrecked usenet and ham radio. I hope

There's an internal battery in some phones to keep the memory alive if you change batteries, but it wouldn't actually run the phone for more than a small fraction of a second. It's about as powerful as the CMOS battery in a computer.

Or just tell the company to disable the phone you have on your account
- they have all the information they need in their database. Although you CAN get the IMEI of a cellphone very easily.

Absolutely not. Back in the 70s we would discuss antennas, circuitry, the pros and cons of certain radios, cars, boats, guns, and such. Occasionally we would discuss more esoteric things like philosophy and history (conspiracy theories were always a favorite). We kept away from politics and religion, mostly, except we would discuss them in general terms.

Come to think of it, HF was the same. These days, it's hardly worth turning the radio on most of the time.

> Allowing no-codes on VHF & UHF has made discussions less technical and

That might be an oversimplification but it's generally accurate. Like I said earlier, what we obtain too cheaply we do not value highly.

Too many of us forget that if we weren't a resource we would be legislated out of existence.

I have no knowledge of such a battery in cellphones, and wonder why they would use such a battery if flash memory is available.

Now notebooks have/had "bridging batteries." These are small rechargable batteries often hidden in the hinge. This is to keep registers in the CPU and mobo alive as you do a battery change. I don't believe there is a way to operate the notebook on the bridging battery.
It's presence often shows up in situations where you need to reset the mobo.

Markie MALE? Well...I suppose in the strictest anatomical definition, but there's something just WRONG about calling someone who

Since you're not Wiseman, you have no idea of what he looks like. But the people who DO know what he looks like say that IS his photo, and they've been mocking it for years at http://nimbusters.com/forum/forum.php?board=10 and moving all of Wiseman's unwanted posts to that URL.

I still fondly remember the battery operated, wireless webcam that Schwartz aimed at Woger's house from across the street. My contacts are telling me that there's a new Axis webcam in operation that shows Woger's house, and that it's on the Internet just like the last one.

Anyone care to pass along the URI? You can email me at the usual address.

Thanks in advance.

...Hey guys...Can you do us a big favour and keep this crap of yours in a newsgroup other than alt.radio.scanner

...Maybe you can start your own group, something like...
Brain-Fart.Trolls.Perversion.Communications

...or something like that.

You're cross-posting this across bandwidth that doesn't give a hoot about your sexual persuasions, squabbles and trolling. Even real ham stuff wouldn't have been all that bad to read about since some of us scanner enthusiasts do listen in when it's not this kind of bullshit that most of you hams seem to love discussing as far and wide as possible. Yah we don't have to click on your shit and read it, but in fact, we all do that just to mark your shit as having beed read, so that we can then more easily check for new scanner posts and info in our newsreader on this newsgroup instead of your he-male, she-male, cock-sucking, gay, child-molesting ham radio shit. Is that what a true ham has become today? No doubt the hobby will now flourish by leaps and bounds to keep it alive and well...

Thanks boys,

Jack

Jack, it is really wishful thinking to believe you can get everyone else to trim their newsgroups just so that you can have a less stressful Usenet experience while using Outlook Express to read alt.radio.scanner.

Have you ever thought about taking control yourself? The way you do that is to use something better than OE, or else add something to OE which can simply kill the unwanted crossposts. Then poof: All the annoying posts go away, and you don't have to develop hypertension over them.

Try http://www.nfilter.org/ and download the <gasp> free Nfilter program. Put it in series that thing called OE, and filter out all posts which contain a comma in their newsgroups header. After that, all of the evil crossposts will disappear.

Of course, you have to be able to read and follow instructions -- something that the denizens of rec.radio.amateur.misc and .policy are mostly incapable of doing, so that gives you a huge advantage over them.

Use the Nfilter, Jack, and enjoy normal blood pressure again.

(And now, we return you to the sewer talk currently in progress ...)

"The feminist agenda is not about equal rights for women. It is about a socialist, anti-family political movement that encourages women to leave their husbands, kill their children, practice witchcraft, destroy capitalism and become lesbians." -- Pat Robertson

Paul,
Ignore Mark Morgan, he ain't playing with a full deck.

It's not off-topic for any radio group. I'm hoping to make this group respectable again, and you can help. If K3LT would would come back and other past RRAP CW supporters, we can kick out the anti-CW Homophiles like Woger, Mark & Lloyd, and make this group respectable again. I'd even get rid of SC and start using my callsign here again once the trash is taken out.

Does anyone still "do" ham? There are cell phones, 15 mile range 2 ways, satellite phones.............

Why would anyone want to take a test to communicate? with Star Trek

Of course, if you're not "into" ham radio - you'd never know that - would you? Cell phones have their limits too. Just as FRS, and others. ALL modes have "limits". AND this is not to say I'm "pro" code. I learned it for my licenses, I listen to it and use it once in a while but not as much as some and a tad more than many. It isn't all about the "code". That hasn't kept the ass holes from invading the airwaves. Don't knock something you've never tried. There is more to it than "just" talking. But, like choosing a "Cell phone" for features - be it video, internet, etc. - aside from "just" talking - ham has many choices too. If you don't like one mode - you try another. Some buy cells "just" for emergencies, while others buy them for all the reasons and effects they can offer. IT IS A MATTER OF PERSONAL TASTE. Cells are the "current" fad just as Ham was to many of you who have never bothered to jump in. Some day Cells will be a thing of the past as well. Like Ham, Cell is NOT the answer to all of life's problems. I've seen THEM fail too when needed most.

Sure you have you couldn't even find rthe Marshall County, WV ARES

"FUCKUP Lee" <SLee@houston-hunks.com> geography idiot and imbecile

Saggytits Lee steps on his own tiny dick when he tried to correct somebody else's English use first by saying one "operates" a dictionary

: Saggytits fucks up again! Just like he did with the Marshall County, WV
: ARES webpage.

There are two webcams involved, and they both are pointed in directions which show the street in front of your house and the alley behind your house, as well as your garage and parts of your house. Apparently, one of your neighbors has security cameras watching the alley and the entrances to his house, and he forgot to secure the little web servers which are built right into those cameras. As a result, anyone can use a web browser to view your garage and parts of your house.

Security webcams are very common these days, and are even sold by Walmart. See for example

http://www.walmart.com/catalog/product.do?product_id=4012427

if you want to buy your own webcam. You could then point it at your neighbor's house to get back at him.

Thanks, DeLorean. I'll forever wonder how you people found out about those unsecured webcams.

6186. 30 helpful hints for No-Code hams like Markie & two test Woger.

The 30 Steps below will help all No-Code Hams, it will also help you to find others just like yourself. These 30 steps should also be added to the present writtens.

Step One: Use as many "Q" signals as possible. Yes, I know they were invented solely for CW and are totally inappropriate for two meter FM, but they are fun and entertaining. They keep people guessing as to what you really meant. I.E. "I'm going to QSY to the phone." Can you really change frequencies to the phone? QSL used to mean, "I am acknowledging receipt", but now it appears to mean, "yes" or "OK". I guess I missed it when the ARRL changed the meaning. It is also best to use "OK" and "QSL" together. Redundancy is the better part of Lid-dom.

Step Two: Never laugh when you can say "HI HI". No one will ever know you aren't a long time CW rag-chewer if you don't tell them. They'll think you've been on since the days of Marconi.

Step Three: Utilize an alternative vocabulary. Use words like "destinated" and "negatory". It's OK to make up your own words here. I.E. "Yeah Tom, I "pheelbart zaphonix" occasionally myself."

Step Four: Always say "XX4XXX" (Insert your own call) "for I.D." As mentioned in Step One, anything that creates redundancy is always encouraged. That's why we have the Department of Redundancy Department. (Please note that you can follow your call with "for identification purposes" instead of "for I.D." While taking longer to say, it is worth more "LID points".

Step Five: The better the copy on two meter FM, the more you should use phonetics. Names should be especially used if they are short or common ones. I.E. "My name is Al... Alpha Lima" or "Jack.. Juliet Alpha Charlie Kilo." If at all possible use the less common HF phonetics "A4SM... America, Number Four, Sugar Mexico." And for maximum "LID points", make up unintelligible phonetics. "My name is Bob... Billibong Oregano Bumperpool."

Step Six: Always give the calls of yourself and everyone who is (or has been) in the group, whether they are still there or not. While this has been unnecessary for years, it is still a great memory test. You may also use "and the group" if you are an "old timer" or just have a bad memory. Extra points for saying everyone's call and then clearing in a silly way "K2PKK, Chow, Chow."

Step Seven: Whenever possible, use the wrong terminology. It keeps people guessing. Use "modulation" when you mean "deviation", and vice-versa.

Step Eight: If someone asks for a break, always finish your turn, taking as long as possible before turning it over. Whenever possible, pass it around a few times first. This will discourage the breaker, and if it is an emergency, encourage him to switch to another repeater and not bother you.

Step Nine: Always ask involved questions of the person who is trying to sign out. Never let him get by with just a "yes" or "no" answer. Make it a question that will take him a long time to answer.

Step Ten: The less you know on a subject, the more you should speculate about it in the roundtable. Also the amount of time you spend on the subject should be inversely proportionate to your knowledge of the subject even though you have no damn clue.

Step Eleven: Always make sure you try to communicate with only a handheld and a rubber duck antenna. Also, make sure you work through a repeater that you can hear very well, but it cannot hear you. This will put out a kind of "LID mating call": "Well, Joe, I can hear the repeater just fine here. I wonder why it can't hear me?" You will score maximum LID points if you are mobile, and with the radio lying in the passenger seat.

Step Twelve: If you hear two amateurs start a conversation, wait until they are twenty seconds into their contact, and then break in to make a call, or better yet to use the auto-patch. Make sure you keep the repeater tied up for at least three minutes. This way, once the two have re-established contact, they won't even remember what they were talking about.

Step Thirteen: You hear someone on the repeater giving directions to a visiting amateur. Even if the directions are good, make sure you break in with your own "alternate route but better way to get there" version. This is most effective with several other "would-be LIDs", each giving a different route. By the time the visiting amateur unscrambles all the street names whizzing by in his mind, he should have moved out of the range of the repeater. This keeps you from having to stick around to help the guy get back out of town, later.

Step Fourteen: If an annoying station is bothering you, make sure your other "LID" buddies have a "coded" frequency list. Even though "CODES" are strictly forbidden on Amateur Radio, it's really neat to practice "James Bond" tactics.

Step Fifteen: Always use the National Calling Frequency for general conversations. The more uninteresting, the longer you should use it. Extra points are awarded if you have recently move from an adjacent frequency for no reason. Make sure when DX is "rolling" in on 52.525 that you hang out there and talk to your friends five miles down the road about the good old CB days!

Step Sixteen: Make sure that if you have a personal problem with someone, you should voice your opinion in a public forum, especially a net. Make sure you give their name, call, and any other identifying remarks. For maximum points, make sure the person in question is not on the repeater, or not available.

Step Seventeen: Make sure you say the first few words of each transmission twice, especially if it is the same thing each time. Like "roger, roger" or "fine business, fine business". I cannot stress enough about encouraging redundancy.

Step Eighteen: If you hear a conversation on a local repeater, break in and ask how each station is receiving you. Of course they will only see the signal of the repeater you are using, but it's that magic moment when you can find a fellow "LID", and get the report. Extra points are awarded if you are using a base station, and the repeater is less than twenty-five air miles from you.

Step Nineteen: Use the repeater for an hour or two at a time, preventing others from using it. Better yet, do it on a daily basis. Your quest is to make people so sick of hearing your voice every time they turn on their radio, they'll move to another frequency. This way you'll lighten the load on the repeater, leaving even more time for you to talk on it.

Step Twenty: See just how much flutter you can generate by operating at handheld power levels too far away from the repeater. Engage people in conversations when you know they wont be able to copy half of what your saying. Even when they say your uncopyable, continue to string them along by making further transmissions. See just how frustrated you can make the other amateur before he finally signs off in disgust.

Step Twenty One: Use lots of radio jargon. After all, it makes you feel important using words ordinary people don't say. Who cares if it makes you sound like you just fell off Channel 19 on the citizen's Band? Use phrases such as "Roger on that", "10-4", "I'm on the side", "Your making the trip" and "Negatory on that".

Step Twenty Two: Use excessive microphone gain. See just how loud you can make your audio. Make sure the audio gain is so high that other amateurs can hear any bugs crawling on your floor. If mobile, make sure the wind noise is loud enough that others have to strain to pick your words out from all the racket.

Step Twenty Three: Start every transmission with the word "Roger" or "QSL". Sure, you don't need to acknowledge that you received the other transmission in full. After all, you would simply ask for a repeat if you missed something. But consider it your gift to the other amateur to give him solace every few seconds that his transmissions are being received.

Step Twenty Four: When looking for a contact on a repeater, always say your "listening" or "monitoring" multiple times. I've always found that at least a half dozen times or so is good. Repeating your multiple "listening" ID's every 10 to 15 seconds is even better. Those people who didn't want to talk to you will eventually call you, hoping you'll go away after you have finally made a contact.

Step Twenty Five: Always use a repeater, even if you can work the other station easily on simplex ... especially if you can make the contact on simplex. The coverage of the repeater you use should be inversely proportional to your distance from the other station.

Step Twenty Six: When on repeaters using courtesy tones, you should always say "over". Courtesy tones are designed to let everyone know when you have unkeyed but don't let that stop you. Say "over", "back to you" or "go ahead". It serves no useful purpose but don't worry, it's still fun!

Step Twenty Seven: Use the repeater's autopatch for frivolous routine calls... especially during morning or evening commute times. While pulling into the neighborhood, call home to let them know you'll be there in two minutes.... or, call your spouse to complain about the bad day you had at work. After all, the club has "measured rate" service on their phone line so they get charged for each autopatch call. Your endeavor is to make so many patches in a year that you cost the club at least $20 in phone bills. That way you'll feel you got your money's worth for your dues!

Step Twenty Eight: Never say "My name is ....." It makes you sound human. If at all possible, use one of the following phrases: a) "The personal here is ..." b) "The handle here is..."

Step Twenty Nine: Use "73" and "88" incorrectly. Both are already considered plural, but add a "s" to the end anyway. Say "73's" or "88's". Who cares if it means "best regards" and "love and kisses." Better yet, say "seventy thirds"! (By the way, seventy thirds equals about 23.3).

Step Thirty: If the repeater is off the air for service, complain about the fact that it was off the air as soon as it's turned back on. Act as though your entire day has been ruined because the repeater wasn't available when you wanted to use it. Even thought you have never paid a penny to help out with the upkeep of it.

Running more than 4 watts on 27 MHz in the US has been illegal since CB became legal here - 1961 IIRC. I don't know what the rules are in Oz.

And yet, oddly enough, the hobby holds so much interest that a person such as yourself feels compelled to read and post in newsgroups dedicated to the Amateur Radio hobby. Do people still "do" ham? Of course. We also have 15 mile capable handheld radios, which along with repeaters and Echolink provide not only regional, but worldwide communication capabilities in the palm of your hand. We utilize our own communications satellites, have developed new technologies (the technology of wireless networking was developed from ham radio), and continue to provide emergeny communications during time of emergency. Do we still "do" Amateur Radio? You bet we do. And to let you in on a secret... Not all of us watch Star Trek, either!

Funny how your story changes.....

Al, yes more or less the same rules in Oz - type approval etc, but this gear is not considered as a collectable boatanchor though, so a bit off topic in the boatanchors forum - maybe an excess of cross-posting.

Saggytits can't even tell us what type of car Roger drives or the over again.

6246. Techno Remix of Bizarre CB Transmission

From the official Web site:

" They Call Me The Midnight Cowboy...
Late on the night of 9/20/06 (actually 9/21/06, 0528 UTC), Dan Quintiliani, K3DRQ stumbled across a bizarre CB transmission while tuning the dial on his IC-725 ham radio transceiver. The transmission went something like this:

"They call me the Midnight Cowboy, the Midnight Cowboy,
They call me the Midnight, Midnight, Midnight, Midnight, Midnight..."

...over and over again.

So, Dan decided to record this transmission on his computer, and (soon afterward) to make a techno remix of it."

Those newer webcams include automatic switchover to night vision mode when it gets dark, but the pictures are in that typical blue-green monochrome mode, and it's tough to make out fine details. Are you trying to save on your electric bill? It doesn't look like you turn your lights on at night, but maybe it's just the night vision mode that makes things look that way.

Both cameras are at the same IP address but use separate, non-standard tcp ports. It's surprising that Schwartz and his buddies were able to find them in the first place, since scanning local broadband providers for user port 80 (the http port) wouldn't have worked. Schwartz must be a really skilled hacker.

It appears that your neighbor(s) access their security webcams while away from home, and that's why they're on the internet 24/7. I'd give you the IP address and the port numbers, but that would ruin all our fun, because you'd soon figure out who had the cameras, and you'd ask the neighbor(s) to point the cameras in a different direction.

Smile, Woger, you're on Candid Camera.

Actually it was 1957 when they took the 11 meter band from the HAMS and created the "Class-D" Citizens radio service....The callsigns were 11W1234 series of calls.
If this guy wanted to market these amplifiers and not attract the wrong attention all he would have to say is they are for amateur use only, with broadband coverage from 28 to 30Mhz.HAM gear does NOT require ANY "type acceptance" at all..
It's not real hard to figure that they would indeed work on 21/24 and 27Mhz....food for thought....

Wiseman isn't Jewish but you and Davies are. Ron Wiseman is not related to Roger Wiseman, you idiot. However Roger's heritage is from the U.K.
yours and Davies is from hymietown.

http://www.houseofnames.com/coatofarms_details.asp?sId=&s=Davies

http://www.houseofnames.com/coatofarms_details.asp?sId=&s=Wiseman

The Wiseman family has descended through the lines of the ancient Anglo-Saxon culture. Their name reveals that an early member was a wise or learned person. Further research revealed that the name is derived from the Old English words wis, meaning wise or knowledgable, and man, meaning man. Spelling variations include: Wiseman, Wyseman, Wysman, Wisman and others.
First found in Essex where they were anciently seated, before and after the Norman Conquest in 1066.
Some of the first settlers of this name or some of its variants were:
Henry and Catherine Wiseman, who settled in Maryland in 1634; John Wiseman, who settled in Virginia in 1652; Henry Wiseman, who settled in Maryland in 1719.(Above is a small excerpt from our 1800 word history)

One song I haven't heard on Omega One: "Jail House Rock"

You might want to get used to hearing that one.

The reason he goes by Wiseman is because it is actually Weizman or Weiss which were originally Jewish names.

At least the webcams operating on standard port 80 are easily found.

Woger, you can go to http://www.opentopia.com/hiddencam.php to see how Schwartz and company may have found those open cams in your neighborhood. It seems that there are a number of people who use automated methods to actively search for open webcams and who then list them on their web sites. Opentopia is just one of many such sites. You can use it to find some WV library webcams which show fat girls studying in the library. Another weekend, one tank trip for you?

anyone with any radio knowledge at all knows that a "10 meter" amp is more than broad enough to be used on 11 meters with very little retuning required (hell, the band edges are less than 600 Khz apart!).

now, there are ways to make a 10 meter amp unusable on 11, but then, it would be mostly unusable on the lower end of 10 as well. :(

so..... the label of a "10 meter amp" os pretty much meaningless, unless you can come up with a bandpass filter that has a 90+db/decade slope and a cutoff just 40 Khz from the edge of band you want to work (good luck with that as the filter would be unwieldy in both size and cost). things like this can be easily done on the upper UHF spectrum where wavelengths are short and parts are easy to fabricate..... not so in the upper HF (wavelengths >6 meters). can you imaging a cavity filter for 10 meters? it would be as big as a house and have a bandwidth narrower than your transmitters operating frequency plus its associated sidebands (am or fm) and wider still than any ssb signal (on 10 meters)

the math on this is indisputable.

My understanding for the US, is that according to the FCC, if you sell ham gear as a business, it has to be type accepted, but you can "home brew" anything you want to use on the ham bands for personal use. If you sell your personal equipment, it doesn't need to be type accepted, either. Also, if you sell an amplifier as a business, it can't operate the 12 or 10 meter band. However, it can be modified to operate it, but that fits in the "home brew" category, again.
I think the stink arose on the posting, because the person posting the original listing, advertised it as a CB radio amplifier, which is illegal in the US and from what I understand, most other countries. Notice that the original poster has not posted in a while, I believe he probably has been warned, because it is off-topic and cross-posted to more than 5 groups, which is considered spam according to the TOS with most ISPs.

Saggytits Lee aka Dave Heil whined and backpedaled:
> At least the webcams operating on standard port 80 are easily found.

You can't even find the Marshall County WV ARES website. You can't even tell the make and color of Roger's car. If such a website (a neighbor's webcam server) existed, you wouldn't hesitate to post it all over the newsgroups. Your "webcam across from his house" story has more holes in it than swiss cheese or your whore mommy's underwear. It's a good thing you post from "Houston's least reliable ISP" because your posts are the least reliable to have any facts contained in them.

Saggytits Lee (Stagger Lee@houston-hunks.com) fails to back up his "webcam story" when he changes the subject with lame excuses when asked what type of car Roger drives and it's color in <night.vision.woger@houston-hunks.com>:
"Those newer webcams include automatic switchover to night vision mode when it gets dark, but the pictures are in that typical blue-green monochrome mode, and it's tough to make out fine details."

Had you read my posts, you would know that I said that I would NOT supply the URI (the term "URL" has been deprecated), because we DON'T want you figuring out whose webcams are pointed in the general direction of your house.

As to your vehicle, I simply haven't seen it. I did notice that you don't seem to turn the lights on at night, though. Maybe you had taken the Yahoo girl friend out to the Shipwreck Lounge.

There no FCC procedure for "type acceptance" of ham gear, so ham gear can't BE type accepted.

There's certification for commercially produced ham gear, but that's a totally different process from type acceptance, and it looks for totally different things. Calling certified gear "type accepted" is like calling a ham a CBer - using the wrong term (which seems to be common practice in English for a couple of decades now)

But not by something as simple as cutting a prominent wire that's labeled "don't cut this wire". By changing capacitors and inductors, yes - but that's home-brewing.

S 97.315 Type acceptance of external RF power amplifiers.
(a) No more than 1 unit of 1 model of an external RF power amplifier capable of operation below 144 MHz may be constructed or modified during any calendar year by an amateur operator for use at a station without a grant of type acceptance. No amplifier capable of operation below 144 MHz may be constructed or modified by a non-amateur operator without a grant of type acceptance from the FCC.
(b) Any external RF power amplifier or external RF power amplifier kit (see S 2.815 of the FCC Rules), manufactured, imported or modified for use in a station or attached at any station must be type accepted for use in the amateur service in accordance with Subpart J of Part 2 of the FCC Rules. This requirement does not apply if one or more of the following conditions are met:
(1) The amplifier is not capable of operation on frequencies below 144 MHz. For the purpose of this part, an amplifier will be deemed to be incapable of operation below 144 MHz if it is not capable of being easily modified to increase its amplification characteristics below 120 MHz and either:
(i) The mean output power of the amplifier decreases, as frequency decreases from 144 MHz, to a point where 0 dB or less gain is exhibited at 120 MHz; or
(ii) The amplifier is not capable of amplifying signals below 120 MHz even for brief periods without sustaining permanent damage to its amplification circuitry.
(2) The amplifier was manufactured before April 28, 1978, and has been issued a marketing waiver by the FCC, or the amplifier was purchased before April 28, 1978, by an amateur operator for use at that amateur operator's station.
(3) The amplifier was:
(i) Constructed by the licensee, not from an external RF power amplifier kit, for use at the licensee's station; or
(ii) Modified by the licensee for use at the licensee's station.
(4) The amplifier is sold by an amateur operator to another amateur operator or to a dealer.
(5) The amplifier is purchased in used condition by an equipment dealer from an amateur operator and the amplifier is further sold to another amateur operator for use at that operator's station.
(c) A list of type accepted equipment may be inspected at FCC headquarters in Washington, DC or at any FCC field location. Any external RF power amplifier appearing on this list as type accepted for use in the amateur service may be marketed for use in the amateur service.

S 97.317 Standards for type acceptance of external RF power amplifiers.
(a) To receive a grant of type acceptance, the amplifier must satisfy the spurious emission standards of S 97.307(d) or (e) of this Part, as applicable, when the amplifier is:
(1) Operated at its full output power;
(2) Placed in the "standby" or "off" positions, but still connected to the transmitter; and
(3) Driven with at least 50 W mean RF input power (unless higher drive level is specified).
(b) To receive a grant of type acceptance, the amplifier must not be capable of operation on any frequency or frequencies between 24 MHz and 35 MHz. The amplifier will be deemed incapable of such operation if it:
(1) Exhibits no more than 6 dB gain between 24 MHz and 26 MHz and between 28 MHz and 35 MHz. (This gain will be determined by the ratio of the input RF driving signal (mean power measurement) to the mean RF output power of the amplifier); and
(2) Exhibits no amplification (0 dB gain) between 26 MHz and 28 MHz.
(c) Type acceptance may be denied when denial would prevent the use of these amplifiers in services other than the amateur service. The following features will result in dismissal or denial of an application for the type acceptance:
(1) Any accessible wiring which, when altered, would permit operation of the amplifier in a manner contrary to the FCC Rules;
(2) Circuit boards or similar circuitry to facilitate the addition of components to change the amplifier's operating characteristics in a manner contrary to the FCC Rules;
(3) Instructions for operation or modification of the amplifier in a manner contrary to the FCC Rules;
(4) Any internal or external controls or adjustments to facilitate operation of the amplifier in a manner contrary to the FCC Rules;
(5) Any internal RF sensing circuitry or any external switch, the purpose of which is to place the amplifier in the transmit mode;
(6) The incorporation of more gain in the amplifier than is necessary to operate in the amateur service; for purposes of this paragraph, the amplifier must:
(i) Not be capable of achieving designed output power when driven with less than 40 W mean RF input power;
(ii) Not be capable of amplifying the input RF driving signal by more than 15 dB, unless the amplifier has a designed transmitter power of less than 1.5 kW (in such a case, gain must be reduced by the same number of dB as the transmitter power relationship to 1.5 kW; This gain limitation is determined by the ratio of the input RF driving signal to the RF output power of the amplifier where both signals are expressed in peak envelope power or mean power);
(iii) Not exhibit more gain than permitted by paragraph (c)(6)(ii) of this Section when driven by an RF input signal of less than 50 W mean power; and
(iv) Be capable of sustained operation at its designed power level.
(7) Any attenuation in the input of the amplifier which, when removed or modified, would permit the amplifier to function at its designed transmitter power when driven by an RF frequency input signal of less than 50 W mean power; or

(8) Any other features designed to facilitate operation in a telecommunication service other than the Amateur Radio Services, such as the Citizens Band (CB) Radio Service.

Hmmmm It took me about a minute to put mine on 10, but I knew what to do and where to look. A couple of the older ones took a few minutes more. I really wouldn't call it making a modification, BUT the gain of those amps is limited so even if some one did put one on 11 they wouldn't get much out driving it with 10 watts. Admittedly it'd be more than the legal 5 watts though. OTOH it'd be like purchasing a 18 wheeler to drive the kids to school.

You'll do fine on the air. It isn't nearly this bad at all on the air. You'll find a few screws loose on 2 meters but HF tends to be much more calm the past few years. A lot of this is the effect of certain miscreants affiliated with the 14.313/3.894 dogfights of the 70s, 80s, and 90s.

The story behind this newsgroup becoming a dump started back in the 1970s with a few miscreant hams from the 4 call area in the Southeast US. At least that is where most of them lived over the years. When the FCC enacted enforcement of these people it started to move over to the internet. There are some of us who would like to see a calm and peaceful group here with the removal of a couple of scumbags one of which is from the 8 call area. You would see this group become a lot more like the rec.radio.amateur.misc group of the distant past. Always been a few nuts but most of my comments are reserved for a certain dirtball.

Hope you enjoy the bands and your VHF and HF privileges, I think you will find it to be interesting and fun.

Why the hell did he waste his time doing that? It isn't funny or entertaining at all. Dan needs to find more constructive ways of spending his time. Besides, that transmission wasn't really that bizarre for CB.

You afe thed expert at hiding and beating off, Lardass. Why did you just show up at the Huntsviulle hamfest as they were closing? Why didn't you show at Dalton hamfest when you said you would? Why did you hide behind your HUD apartment door and piss yourself when Oris stopped by?

I happened to be traveling through Huntsville, Alabama early this morning, I deceided to stop in Athens and see just how tough Lloyd Davies was going to act when he saw me in person.

Many of you know that a few years ago, Lloyd got smart with several people in the Deja Newsgroup (now Google) and I issued a challenge to him. I told him I would be attending the Dalton, Ga. Hamfest if he wanted to continue the conversation. He said he would be there and he was going to kick my ass.

Well, Lloyd was a no-show and continued the verbal assault on the newsgroups. He always talks tough behind his keyboard. And, I understand he is now doing the same sort of thing on the NIM Busters Board.

Well, about 8.35 this morning (December 23, 2004) I located his apartment in a nasty looking section of town. I'm a pretty good sized man, but I put my gun in my back waistband after exiting the car. I located his apartment and knocked on the door. The doorbell was missing and bare wires were sticking out of the wall. I heard someone say I'm coming and shortly the door opened with a safety chain lock still engaged. He asked what I wanted and I introduced myself and asked if we could have a conversation. He turned white as a sheet and attempted to slam the door, but I already had a foot wedged in the opening. He started shaking uncontrollably and was shouting leave me alone, leave me alone! I told him he didn't seem so tough now face to face and then noticed a putrid odor of urine and he was pissing his pants and crying like a baby. Please leave me alone Oris he said, I was just having fun and meant no harm, please leave, please. I could see the filthy floor of this apartment and the dirty floors and the stench of a grown man pissing on himself were almost enough to make me want to vomit, and I don't have a queasy stomach. Upon telling him that this time he would escape a ass kicking and not to ever get a smart mouth with me again and a verbal yes from him, I departed. That apartment complex looked like a crackhouse, niggers everywhere, filthy grounds and stairwells. Junk cars everywhere and garbage overflowing the garbage cans.

This Lloyd is nothing more than white trash that delivers pizzas and could afford to take a trip out of town if the ticket cost $5.00.

I'm sending this to a friend who despises Lloyd Davies and he wanted to post it for everyone to see just what kind of chickenshit asshole this Davies really is.

Oris Grim

Hey Davies, your father Ray Lee says he did sodomize you when you were younger, and that you helped your truck stop whore mommy Shelly turn tricks in the truck stop restrooms.

I did, and there are enough holes in your "webcam lie" to drive a Mack truck through.
All your backpedaling and excuses for your lie that you were caught making won't change the fact you made up the whole "webcam" thing. The webcam surely must be on during the daytime, and if there was indeed one you would be able to tell us the make and color of Roger's car. He doesn't go to the Shipwreck Lounge, and he sure wouldn't drive there. Looks like you are just the least reliable information source of the internet.

Saggytits Lee (Stagger Lee@houston-hunks.com) fails to back up his "webcam story" when he changes the subject with lame excuses when asked what type of car Roger drives and it's color in <night.vision.woger@houston-hunks.com>:
"Those newer webcams include automatic switchover to night vision mode when it gets dark, but the pictures are in that typical blue-green monochrome mode, and it's tough to make out fine details."

happened to be traveling through Huntsville, Alabama early this morning, I deceided to stop in Athens and see just how tough Lloyd Davies was going to act when he saw me in person.

Many of you know that a few years ago, Lloyd got smart with several people in the Deja Newsgroup (now Google) and I issued a challenge to him. I told him I would be attending the Dalton, Ga. Hamfest if he wanted to continue the conversation. He said he would be there and he was going to kick my ass.

Well, Lloyd was a no-show and continued the verbal assault on the newsgroups. He always talks tough behind his keyboard. And, I understand he is now doing the same sort of thing on the NIM Busters Board.

Well, about 8.35 this morning (December 23, 2004) I located his apartment in a nasty looking section of town. I'm a pretty good sized man, but I put my gun in my back waistband after exiting the car. I located his apartment and knocked on the door. The doorbell was missing and bare wires were sticking out of the wall. I heard someone say I'm coming and shortly the door opened with a safety chain lock still engaged. He asked what I wanted and I introduced myself and asked if we could have a conversation. He turned white as a sheet and attempted to slam the door, but I already had a foot wedged in the opening. He started shaking uncontrollably and was shouting leave me alone, leave me alone! I told him he didn't seem so tough now face to face and then noticed a putrid odor of urine and he was pissing his pants and crying like a baby. Please leave me alone Oris he said, I was just having fun and meant no harm, please leave, please. I could see the filthy floor of this apartment and the dirty floors and the stench of a grown man pissing on himself were almost enough to make me want to vomit, and I don't have a queasy stomach. Upon telling him that this time he would escape a ass kicking and not to ever get a smart mouth with me again and a verbal yes from him, I departed. That apartment complex looked like a crackhouse, niggers everywhere, filthy grounds and stairwells. Junk cars everywhere and garbage overflowing the garbage cans.

This Lloyd is nothing more than white trash that delivers pizzas and could afford to take a trip out of town if the ticket cost $5.00.

I'm sending this to a friend who despises Lloyd Davies and he wanted to post it for everyone to see just what kind of chickenshit asshole this Davies really is.

You must not have noticed the 75+ messages he posted since this morning, perhaps more. My kill filter only kills Mark's posts, plus anything coming from taranews, and it racked up a big kill count when I entered rrap. Earlier in the morning, it didn't register any kills.

I guess he got a weekend away from jail. That gives him more time to flood usenet and jam on 20 meters, except that his 20M signal is so weak from that valley that nobody can hear him.

I saw your cruel comments about Steve's daughter, Morgan. He has nothing to apologize for. I suppose in your jumbled thought processes you think YOU are the one wronged, but this is simply not so.
So you keep on with your hundreds of posts, idiot. And while posting your childish drivel perhaps it would behoove you to apologize to Steve. You certainly owe him that.

I can't believe a grown man would act like that. Sounds like what kids used to do when playing on the CB radio. When I was in High School CB was popular and we talked on it a lot. One kid ran illegal power and tried to block everyone elses transmissions (played music and strange noises and cussed people out). His Dad got a letter from the FCC and he got his CB taken away as well as his car. Too bad we can't do that with adults.

American English: "Can" = "May". "Can" seems to be preferred in common usage. (Then again, just look at how some of our kids spell on Usenet and in IRC and, knowing that any of them can grow up to be president, be very afraid.)

Hi,

My 940 was working good for while, but now the S-Meter lights and the VFO display have started to flicker. They flicker at random times very quickly (all at once). The LCD display bulbs don't flicker, but they have both burnt out now. And I just replaced them less than 2 years ago (with Kenwood factory replacements).

I checked the voltage to the power amp and it reads 28.6 volts. The S-Meter (lights) read 13.6 volts and when the flicker occurs the voltage very quickly varies from ~6 to 13 volts - never above 13.6 volts. Is this some kind of voltage regulation issue? I can't get it to do this by moving wires around and pushing on things. It does only seem to effect the lights the are controlled by the dimmer switch.

On a side note, I've been reading several posts about the 2N5885 that regulate the 28v supply for the power amp failing and wiping out the MRF-485 transistors that are no longer available. Does it make sense to preemptivly change the 2N5885 transistors to help prevent damage to those MRF-485? I use my 940 daily - and its on most of the day.

That is not correct. If you ask "can I eat a caramel, my reply is you may (permission) if you can (ability). For all I know you're toothless and have no ability to chew.

If you correctly ask "may I have a caramel" the correct reply is, "yes, you may."

That is very interesting there White Trash. I've held a General for many years. By the way, weren't you required to retest per a letter from FCC enforcement bureau? Shall we post the record for all to see again? They don't make people retest unless you have been accused or proven to have committed rules violations. Just like you did, Wussman. You're nothing more than a pimple on the ass of the amateur radio community. You've never contributed anything useful or provided technical commentary to the community at large. You've never promoted amateur radio as a hobby and national service to your country. All you are is a low class scumbag of nefarious character and an intentional rule violator. Your record speaks for yourself.

Only a white trash pervert like you would want another guy to blow him.
It just shows what a perverted individual you have proven yourself to be over the years. In fact, if you were as straight as you claim to be you wouldn't want that. But it just proves your perversion.

Scheissman hides again behind his curtains just like when his neighbor showed up. In fact, not only did WGM show but so did someone and his wife. Where was Woger? Hiding behind the curtains? At the store? Hiding behind his mommy? Hiding behind his so-called girlfriend? Hiding behind his past in Florida? Just like when he was the flunky down in Hillsborough Co. FL being a loser.

He's also known as the newsgroup moron. Don't pay attention to him Chris. Most people don't here and the only reason I am here is to give him some of his own medicine. Other than that, I don't pay much attention to him. Just a few minutes every day just to shove his crap back into his face. We've been trying to flush him for several years but his pointy little head comes back up. A true toilet tick he is.

Here's some background on "LLoyd"

LLoyd is a racist troll who was arrested for screwing cows and pumpkins.

Lloyd claimed he saw " a bug on my pee pee and I was trying to shake it off".

Date: September 12, 1998 caught showing two young boys his " willie ".
the parents moved and didn't prosecute.

Date: December 21, 1998 caught jerking off behind the local porno magazine
store to pictures of naked men.

Date: March 8, 1999 caught putting " secret sauce ' on pizza just before delivering it.

July 4, 1999 (you have something to tell us about july 4th Lloyd?) caught putting his penis in the cotton candy machine at local fair, then offering some special cotton candy to young boys.

October 14, 1999 caught cornholing a friend in back seat of car at local park
(a pickle park?) claimed he got stuck while playing leapfrog.

Read everything closely. There were three letters sent.

The letters to both Wiseman and Tunder were a preemptive "warning" that did not allege any activities. That hardly qualifies as a warning in the context of someone having actually done something.

The letter with the warning in it ALLEGED interference, and warned of consequences.

The retest letter made no reference to interference; in fact gave no reason for requiring the retest. Such a request is part of the Volunteer Examining program. It could have been made for any number of reasons that may have had nothing to do with any of the addressee's actions. An investigation into the VE group that gave the test, would be a good example.

Only one letter was a warning referring to interference.

So, yes; if you are going to tell it, tell it straight.

You don't hold a General license. You can't even post under your

Hmm, you think that spelling is a reflection on intelligence? Spelling is a rather arbitrary transliteration of vocal sounds into written text. I have known some incredibly brilliant people that couldn't spell their way out of a wet paper bag, and I have known some extremely facile spellers that couldn't reason their way out of that same bag.

The kids on IRC are using home grown abbreviations to cut down on the number of symbols they need to type to convey a message... Hams do the same thing when using RTTY, or CW.

I am sort of curious as to why my posting of the actual FCC part 97 rules that cover linear amplifiers drew exactly zero comments.

Then how could he jam, you stupid fat fuck? If he has "no signal" how

I do... and it's amazing they can communicate at all.

So if everyone under 20 confuses "can" and "may" does this make the misuse of either word correct? Hardly. If a million people do a stupid thing, it's still a stupid thing.

Believe it or not, grammar does have a place in this world. It's the correct means by which we communicate. If we can't communicate correctly, we shouldn't be surprised when things don't go the way we want them.

Just my 2 cents.

Chuck,
you do point out an interesting fact:
in the last 15 years or so, the written language of the internet has come into its own. it is not unlike English in many respects (American English is an "evolved" language, much like "net speak").

today's kids know this language well and it does, in fact, convey a lot of information with a minimum of keystrokes. replacing letter combinations (the ATE sound) with numbers (like 8) can shorten word lengths while still sounding the same.

there is already research going on per this subject and several prominent papers have been presented over the last few years.... it won't be too long before someone actually engineers an alphabet for the net. that will be neat to see.

and to think, hams are the ones that actually originated tis concept with CW starting over 70 years ago.

Many of the lowlife here want to dumb down ham radio so it's Like CB. As the

The CORRECT answer is "NO, they'll ruin your teeth and besides, I just had the last one".

In American English, "can" is often used as a permission rather than ability, and not just by people under 20. It's in common usage.

When I was a boy, there was a mother down the street who was a little snooty and when her son asked "Can I have a glass of milk?", she would reply "You can but you mayn't". Talk about losing the battle and the war.

I'd be surprised today if this now-grown man EVER used the word "mayn't" and probably still uses "can" as a permission.

Such is language.

The idea of a new language / alphabet based upon internet texting IS fascinating. Another poster is correct, it all started with hams' abbreviations in CW.

Is there perhaps an earlier precedent?

But if it's Woger's nameless frogger (and I do vaguely recall hearing something about Wiseman's incarceration, back in 2000 or 2001, now), who shall be henceforth known as "Woger", "Wabbit", or "Wiseman", by Imperial decree from Teh Court of MEOW, then Formosa's Rule doesn't apply. Now, back into the Galactic Killfile with you.

Chris,

That guy uses a wide variety of user names. Mostly coming from Yahoo accounts since they are easy to sign up to. Sounds to me that you are highly intelligent and motivated. Being able to attain all of those degrees and qualifications is nothing to sneeze at. What the real problem with those people who condemn you is that they lack the mental aptitude to even pass one course in those areas much less attain 120 plus hours or more of college credit.

After all, would you expect Bubba and his clones to have the mental fortitude to master any sort of technical material. Interesting that the bozo jumped your case despite the fact that he has nothing that resembles any sort of qualifications or degree. Can you imagine an employer allowing a guy like that to abuse their computer system? Especially that a great many of his posts occur at work between 7 and 11 am.

You're largely correct on that but there is one point I have to make. A lot of this on-air stupidity occured under the watch of those generals, advanced, and amateur extras that operated in the 70s, 80, and 90s. Now that Hollingsworth came onto the scene you no longer hear the retards on 14.313, 14.300, 3894.5 and other frequencies. Most of these bozos were located in the Southeastern US and mostly in the 4 call district. Although you can say that idiots have permeated other areas too.

Perhaps it is because it really is Scheissman on the NG. Why else would he get so defensive when the truth was presented about his activities.

You're the one who can't quite understand that Hollingsworth does send out retest letters because of your lack of understanding of the rules.
Of course, that never stopped you before on 20 meters when you carried your personal feuds on that band. Why is it that you can't see reality Schiessmann? Is it because you are running around with your head stuck in your boxers?

Could you explain to us how the literacy level is determined by points?
I've read the CIA World Factbook for many years and it and other sources state literacy level by a percentage of the population capable of reading and writing. Or is it because you're stupid and lack new material?

Indeed it is, coward.

Chickenshit COWARD Saggytits Lee pathetically tries to justify his hiding behind anonymity in <3B8FFFF5.143FA...@houston-hunks.com>:

"...readers have already had uninvited people show up at their homes, have had people subscribe them to magazines and book clubs, have received hang-up calls in the middle of the night, have had poison pen letters written to their neighbors and employers, and have had poison pen email sent to their ISPs in an attempt to get their accounts canceled. That's not a "what if" scenario either: It has happened repeatedly to certain members of these news groups, yours truly included (one person has emailed repeated lies to Altopia in an attempt to learn my identity). One of our readers has even had to go to the courts and obtain an injunction against one of those nuts.

I choose not to give insane people like that any kind of edge in physically locating me, and if you think that's "cowardice", you are only demonstrating your profound ignorance of Usenet and of the kind of people who read these posts."

Then the no-balls coward ends his feminine cuntly whining with:
"And do you know what else? I AM SICK TO DEATH OF THOSE WHO REPEAT YOUR TIRED OLD, IGNORANT REFRAIN. Until you learn a few things, you ought to shut your arrogant mouth."
--
Saggytits Lee (Stagger Lee@houston-hunks.com) fails to back up his "webcam story" when he changes the subject with lame excuses when asked what type of car Roger drives and it's color in <night.vision.woger@houston-hunks.com>:
"Those newer webcams include automatic switchover to night vision mode

when it gets dark, but the pictures are in that typical blue-green monochrome mode, and it's tough to make out fine details."

Nope, wrong again, fucknuts.

If he "saw" Roger in a "webcam" then Saggytits Davey could tell us the make and color of Roger's car. He's yet to do so.
There is no webcam and he is a liar.

Just like you do about your illiteracy, "Floriduh" boy.

don't make people retest unless you have been accused or proven to have committed rules violations."

Billy can't read the ARRL website which states:
NOTE: Issuance by the FCC of a Warning Notice indicates that the FCC has what it believes to be reliable evidence of possible rules you got retested despite your bullshit spin antics. I've been a ham for

Unlike yourself, I don't have a record with the commission. Obviously you are projecting your loser tendencies on others. Isn't that right, 2 Test? I think they should pull your license for character issues anyway due to the fact you lack the ability to act in a civilized manner on the air. That is when you can actually put a station together of which you haven't been heard much lately. I wonder why? Bwhahahahaha. They should pull your license though because of your character issues.

Did you take another hit off that crack pipe boy? Like most of your low class white trash bretheren from Glendale. Must suck to be you, you really should check yourself into a mental clinic.

By the way, if you had the balls to show at Dayton you would have met me. Then again, you couldn't have gotten there because you didn't have money to drive there or anything else. That or you were afraid that someone would recognize you and SHTF, MOMMAS BOY. You're a loser Woger and face it a social pariah too.

One liar calling another guy a liar, how convenient? Speaking out of your ass again, huh momma's boy? Of course, with your head up there it is no surprise that you can't speak correctly. I've heard you on the radio and it is funny that you sound like a Porky Pig wannabe with a lisp. Of course, we all know how you got the lisp. Which also explains why you lived with momma.

rules to readminister any examination element previously administered by a volunteer examiner.

Hey Woger: Got any new versions of the "I wasn't home when the Heils knocked on my door" story? I liked the latest version, in which only a girl friend was at your house.

Some of the other lies you've told:

1. The FCC boys were bored one day, and so they decided to retest KC8JBO. The other FCC letters he received had nothing whatsoever to do with the retest.

2. N0VFP (a) lost his job, (b) committed suicide, (c) was arrested, (d) was murdered, (e) was disowned by his parents, (f) ...

3. You published an email, allegedly by Oris Grim, except that Oris apparently couldn't even spell his own last name correctly. According to you, he spelled it "Grimm." When the error was pointed out, the misspelling was suddenly corrected, and the forgery was published again.

4. When an Ohio ham "visited" you, he was so frightened that he didn't even get out of his truck. Yeah, right.

5. The photo at http://nimbusters.com/forum/forum.php?board=10 isn't a picture of you.

6. Stagger Lee is Dave Heil.

You are "Wabbit", Wabbit, unless and until you ever decide to out

"Roger 'Woger Wabbit' Wiseman", unless you're simply lying about not being him. Your word cannot be trusted.

Hey Davie, What's the make and color of Roger's car? You claim to have seen it on a "webcam", or are you going to backpedal and lie some more?

Here's some of the lies you've told:

1) There are two webcams pointed in the direction of Roger's house.

2) Eric Clapton wrote Layla for the Finnish Ex-streetwalker Assheil married after his wife left him.

3) The Marshall County, WV ARES website is the same one for the Marshall County AL ARES group.

4) Gohpher face Tunder didn't sit out in his white rustbucket truck with the engine running and phoned in to Roger via cell phone because, well, he just shit himslef and was stuck to the seat of the truck.

5) Davey ASSheil never "encounters" Roger alone.

5a) Saggytits can't prove the FCC made Roger retest because of interference, he simply can't read the Part 97 rules regarding retest procedures.

6) Saggytits Lee only uses anonyimity because he a big badass.

--Saggytits Lee (Stagger Lee@houston-hunks.com) fails to back up his "webcam story" when he changes the subject with lame excuses when asked what type of car Roger drives and it's color in <night.vision.woger@houston-hunks.com>:
"Those newer webcams include automatic switchover to night vision mode when it gets dark, but the pictures are in that typical blue-green monochrome mode, and it's tough to make out fine details."

Nope! Never tangled with 'im. Got thoroughly sick of him, back in 2000, though. It doesn't matter if you're not really Wabbit, since you're not readily identifiable as anyone else, and all your morphs are lames of your "enemies", which was a Woger hallmark. Since I'm not a reg in RRAP, but in AUK, I can't possibly hope to ID you properly, either. Therefore, you are "Wabbit", until you decide to come out of your hole and be a human.

TEH WAY OF THE K00K
Never learn from your mistakes.
Always practice your mistakes; you may get them right.
Always pick on those smarter and tougher than you.
Always believe that only you know the TRVTH.
Never allow logic or reason get in the way of a good k00k.
When being overwhelmed by logic and reason: k00ksuit!
If you are going to be wrong, do it at the top of your lungs.
When caught in a lie: LIE!
When in doubt: Order the Crab Won Ton
Plagiarism is your friend. Use it.
Whenever contradicted; morph, start calling people names, and make false accusations. Include the children of your target in your allegations, even if they don't have any.
(06-Jun-05) When nobody else will listen, post to your own fan group.
(06-Jun-05) Obviously, since you have your own fan group, this must mean that you have fans. Post prolifically to your fan group - you wouldn't want to disappoint them!
(10-May-2005)Everyone reads usenet. Approval here means approval everywhere.
Post numerous blank posts, or posts containing only a message id.
Post numerous copy&paste web articles from crackerpot websites.
Never forget to call kookologists "k00ks."
If there are several, call them "sockpuppets" too
When all else fails, accuse various and sundry kookologists of e-mailing viruses to you. This is a sure-fire method of garnering sympathy and ensuring that the General Public will always see things your way. An especially effective sub-strategy here is to accuse them of infecting you with the 'Sasser' worm via e-mail.
Quote notorious scientists or writers - it makes it look as if they approve the drivel you are writing!
(9-Jul-05) Anytime your computer is infected with a virus, bogged down by spyware, attacked over your internet connection, or otherwise suffers from preventable problems, government agencies are responsible and are trying to silence you and are monitoring your computer files.
Ignore all traffic signs and feel free to trespass, you don't have to obey any rules.

Scare your enemies with lawsuits, police escorts and whines.
Always back up your empty (albeit noisy) threats with phony LARTs, false police reports, and harassing letters to the FBI and other gubbermint agencies.
Be vigilant in your redundancy. The more you repeat yourself, the more likely others will believe you!
If you can't find anyone as crazy as yourself to support you in the flamewars you start with the normal population, create sock puppets and use anonymous remailers that shamelessly hang on every word you write.
(17-Mar-05) When dealing with law enforcement, remember that it is they who have the problem, not you. Be sure to inform them of this at every available opportunity, as they will surely appreciate your constructive criticism. Be sure to make them aware that YOU KNOW YOUR RIGHTS! ("The cops like that, when people know their rights. That way they don't have to read them to you on the way to the station." - George Carlin)
The more your fake personalities adulate you, the more respect you'll get!
When confronted with a reality that you don't like: Announce loudly that you are departing, never to return as long as there's an Internet. Come back in three or four days and claim you were drunk, hacked, abducted by alience, or forged. Alternately you can just not even mention your prior departure, and if anyone asks you about it, either ignore them or respond with something along the lines of "YOUR NOT THE BOSS OF ME! PLONK!" People really know you mean business then.
Always remain clueproof.
(20-Mar-05) Anyone who does not believe that you are the reincarnation of [$DEITY_OR_PROPHET] is obviously an infidel lacking in faith whose soul in in peril of everlasting damnation.
When responding to one line challenges, post paragraphs of rants and screed in response.
Incoherency is not a roadblock to poasting.
Neither is illiteracy.
Delusions poasted often enough become fact.
Claim you will destroy for attacking you.
When spnaked, send cmsg for Fanboi newsfroup(s).
Find your Lame, Use your Lame, Be your Lame!
Post Edit when the TRVTH hurts.
Always sneck the offending newsfroups.
Always poast pictures of yourself so you can be admired in all your k00ky glory.
Always accuse others of the very acts you are guilty of.
Post lots of boasts about your high IQ and incredible talents.
(20-Mar-05) If you repeat a lie often enough, it becomes the truth. Anybody who fails to understand this is engaged in a deliberate campaign of misinformation and character assassination.
Always somebody just before replying the plonkee!
The k00k considers itself the most intelligent person in any conversation, possibly on the planet. Other people are benighted and ignorant, and have been waiting their whole lives for the k00k to rescue them from intellectual darkness.

Write a self-published book and claim it a success. Bonus points for comparing it to "Mein Kampf" and/or the Bible.
Declare yourself equal to a deity of your choice.
Claim that you've come from other planets.
Claim thousands of past lives.
Frothing complaints carry far more weight when you send them from "legal@" some domain.
Nothing strikes terror into the hearts of your detractors more than telling them that you're archiving their messages for possible use in the future.
Never forget that everyone else posting to Usenet is a paid disinformation agent looking to discredit you.
Usenet is governed by US law. If a poster in Romania killfiles you, he's obviously violating your 1st Amendment rights and can be sued.
Every news admin in the world hangs out in NANAU, and they're just dying to nuke the account of that meanyhead who just called you "fucknozzle". Drop 'em a line - that's what they're there for, after all.
AUK will be closed down. Just you wait and see.
They've nuked hundreds of accounts in the name of free speech and yours will be next.
The k00k will, without any trace of irony, lie, manipulate, impersonate, censor, and declare themselves powerful in ways ranging from the ability to have an account shut down to being God Herself, in order to convince people that they are not liars, manipulators, censors, or insane.
Abuse women while telling how many hundreds you've loved. Nevermind that you're one ugly motherfucker and that there were 30,000 femininas that thought you were a scumbag with bad teeth.
Remember that your ko0ky klaims are 'facts', and that 'facts' do not require proof.
Do not neglect to poast your responses to forums that the originator doesn't read. This will make the people in that forum very impressed with how you tear him to shreds without him being able to respond. They like it even better if you are off-topic for that forum.
Keep in mind that lack of evidence supporting your konspiracy theory actually _is_ evidence, of how effective the konspiracy is in hiding.
(06-Oct-05) When spanked, always retreat to the safety of the Ad Hominem.
(04-Aug-2005) When spanked mercilessly for days on end, proving with each poast just what an illiterate and ignorant fool you are, ALWAYS claim ownership of [person(s),froup(s)]. This works on so many levels. It inspires dread in your opponents that they will no longer be able to poast in their home froup and that they will eventually have to pay rent, to name just two.
Any problems with your poasts are the fault of the konspirators, who are trying to stop you from preventing the extinction of humanity.
Konspiracies that are able to subvert whole governments are always unable to silence konspiracy ko0ks.
The entire United States government is willing to spend millions of dollars for the sole purpose of harassing you.
Hollywood is making movies based on your personal life.

Do not consult psychiatrists or other mental health professionals. They are part of the konspiracy, and will sedate you and lock you away and keep you drugged if you tell them the truth.
Numerology and Astrology are respectable sciences and are useful for proving your case.
Everyone is Tim Hill, or David Green, or...
There is a fine line between trolling and kookery. Find that line and cross it repeatedly. When you are killfiled and/or LARTed for net.abuse as a result, claim victory. If you lose multiple accounts, this merely proves that you are indeed a world-class troll, with a black-belt in manipulation.
If you respond to every post someone else makes, they're obsessed. If they respond to less than 1% of your posts, they're even more obsessed.
Publishing people's real names, addresses, and phone numbers when there's no other way for you to come out of a flamewar with any dignity is cool, and proves that you are a master of secret internet information stores, and absolutely not to be fucked with.
Everyone is out to get you. You can put a stop to this by telling everyone that they're out to get you at every available opportunity.
You are the only sane one.
Those that give you a hard time about morally bankrupt things you yourself admit to are just persecutioners of the new inquisition.
Yelling in all caps and cursing at your detractors is debate. Your detractors laughing at you with sarcastic remarks is obvious anger and jealousy.
If doing something results in the loss of your account, legal hassles, or blunt trauma injury, do it again. It always works better the second time.
Asterisks, lots and lots of Asterisks.
Poking holes in kookscreed is stalking, and is a felony.
K00ks LOVE to "connect the dots". They are, of course, dots that only the k00k can see.

I'm relatively new to the group, but I can already tell you're the group troll.

Having been active in the rec.photo groups for sometime, I understand trolls, but at least you have a beef with something tangible.

Let's face it. You most likely are one of those who got their General at 13 WPM, maybe their Extra at 20 and hate the no coders and those who got their license by only taking code at 5WPM. Well, who cares. It's time for you to accept reality and come to the conclusion, you out lived Morse Code. Get on with life.

You don't get it, do you? But if you insist, many many years ago you HAD to learn Latin to attend university. Then, a few people bucked the trend and started removing the requirement to know Latin. Oh sure, the old guard resisted. Many professors refused to work without Latin as a requirement, ostensibly because they felt that the Latin requirement would demonstrate serious commitment to learning. But the world progressed and now conversational Latin is no longer required, save for a few medical and legal references.

Now, would you tell your doctor that he is not a real doctor if he can't carry on a conversation in Latin? He just might be able to, but odds are he will only know what is necessary to do his job effectively.

Actually I live in a nice house I paid for.

You sound like a foul mouthed old fart who never amounted to anything in life and has to bother the snot out of people to make himself feel superior. You live by yourself because no woman would have you and all your pets would run away. You're a pitiful case that never graduated from high school. They tried to train you in the military but you were to stupid to learn to do anything so they stuck you in the kitchen peeling potatos and you've been pissed off about it every since.

Don't respond to this. I'm filtering you. I'm done with you and if I ever encounter you on the air using profanity or otherwise interfering with transmissions I'll help the FCC track you down and put you under a federal prison.

No, not at all. There is a lot less cussing, spitting, passing of gas into the mike, usually no electronic sound effects, and rarely a "10-4 good buddy." I'd say the average ham has an 80 point higher IQ, than the average Cber.

Actually I thought the 11 Meter band was given to CB in 1955 and not 1957. A very mute point indeed.

Well, I sort of thought it might draw a few "Oh, gee, I guess commercially made ham linears have to be FCC type accepted after all"'s.

The guy making the CB linears fails a whole laundry list of requirements for type acceptance of a Ham linear.

And because he isn't a ham, he cannot legally build even one such unit, let alone go into production.

That was the Class D citizens band. I believe Class C is also in the 27 MC range, with low bandwidth digital modulation for remote control, etc.

Whatever happened to classes A and B? I recall Class A was AM on the 460 MC band.... took a huge amount of bandwidth both because of the modulation method and the fact the transmitters were generally not very stable...

I don't think anyone except him thinks otherwise.

The thing is... what will the FCC do about it? And are they going to do anything about the touch lamps sold at my local Wal-Mart which spew trash all over the HF band, or the local computer store which has a roll of "FCC Part 15 approved" stickers which they put on uncertified (and often uncompliant) PCs?

I was listening to Omega One this morning at around 1340Z. Todd was doing some sort of monologue and looses it. Cussing, swearing, obscenities, calling the Bureau NAZI's. If Omega One was a REAL radio station, Todd would have lost his license for indecency. ROFL

No shit Sherlock. If you actually READ you would see that I said so too.

And if you actually paid attention you would already know that I am in Canada and WE require 80% on the technical exam to get a no-code license, something I fully agree with. Nothing lazy there, but you

Uh...I said CONVERSATIONAL Latin. I made that point clear AND I acknowledged Latin's use in medicine and law. Try to keep up.

Projecting again Roger? Or did your mother Marie do that to you? Seems that you have an obsession with penises, asses, and cocksucking. You sound like the expert about it. Then again, what else could you expect from a 51 year old gay male.

The long hair is for when Roger gets dressed to the nines in his girly garb and ready for action with the Lads. I noticed too that Roger couldn't spell the last name right too. Then a correction was made. In fact, do a google search for the news and you'll find it.

BWHAHAHAHAHAHAHA Billy fucks up again, Roger doesn't have long hair.
But Billy is in his 30's and bald as a 75-80 year old man!
BWHAHAHAHAHAHAHA Maybe that's why Billy is pursuing Roger, he can't get a woman, so he embraces his homosexuality and goes after an older man.
Too bad, Billy gets rejected, as usual.

So, which is it, then? Either you're a copycat, or you're Woger. Not that it matters. Either way, the nomination will stick.

The foam duck in question is the one who thinks anyone is _bothering_ to "guess" who you are. You adopted Woger Wiseman's style, and that's enough to get you the nickname of "Wabbit". Woger was never a flamer, but he

That might be why you find code difficult. You might ask Lloyd or Roger for some pointers on how they do CW with limp wrists.

Also, you might not want to talk into a microphone until you do something about your lisp, unless you're talking on your CB of course.

Happy to Help.

Don't worry, you've had the rep for at least the past six years.
Nothing's changed of late, except for Wabbit trying to use AUK to bash Mark (who won the GK because he was a fucking boring k00k, not because AUK was catering to Woger/Woger's copycat). On that note:

4. What's this newsgroup (AUK) NOT for?

This group exists for recreational Kookology, not for Very Personal
Vendetta. It is not to be used for general harassment of someone, or for
^^^^^^
net abuse such as spamming and flooding and cancelbombing in an attempt to gain vengeance on someone or get the denizens of AUK to shut up.
Either way, it won't work, it's very messy, "Bob" will give you triple your money back, and you don't get a life.

Also, we [tinw] are not in the business of harassing the vulnerable or the insane. Occasionally an apparent net.kook proves to be genuinely ill. In such cases the person is disqualified from winning awards and other posters are asked to avoid exacerbating his or her problems.
Similarly, trolling or kook-hunting in support groups is strongly discouraged.

You like to talk about morse code. Last I checked Ham Radio was alive

Been playing with it a little but concentrating more on the theory right now. I knew it well in Boy Scouts 25 years ago. Taking that test in 2

Code isn't hard. I was fleunt in code as a 12 year old in Boy Scouts along with most of the troop. We sent code back and forth by flashlight from tent to tent when we should have been asleep. When we got older and didn't have to go to bed at 10 o'clock we just used words.

You are the group cartoon kiddie porn guy and are fun to kick around.
That's why we miss you. Unfortunately, you lost your broadband ISP twice over kiddie porn, and now you have to go to a library or to a friend's machine. Dialup access is still available everywhere, so why don't you get a Netzero account or something? You could join Woger on Earthlink or on MSN, and Steve could work on getting you booted again.

We might visit you when you're in jail. Slow Code could organize a tail gate party, and we could all party in the jail's parking lot and make fun of you. Hurry up and get that NAL, Todd, so we can party.

The answer is "yes it is a real contact" and so far as you were communicating with some one using a radio it also is "like talking to someone on CB."

Dude, your arrogance is showing.

And that's a good thing. There are too many in-your-face homos trying to equate themselves to a minority group like the Vietnamese. But they aren't a true minority group, and their main intent is to try and confuse the issue in other people's minds. They engage in what are repulsive sexual habits to most of us, and we shouldn't ever feel hesitant to point that out. The word "sodomy" comes from the Old Testament, indicating that homosexual activity has been repulsive to mankind for thousands of years.

If you are "gay" (that once-innocent word has been stolen from us by the homos), keep it to your f-ing self. You don't have to march in disgusting annual parades in places like New York City and Disney World, and you don't have to put on even more disgusting displays once the parades have been completed. I stopped taking my family to Disney World after they were exposed to a disgusting stage display without any warning from the park owners. I was so highly offended that I never went back, and I'm not alone. A few years later, the Southern Baptist Church placed a boycott on Disney which remains in force to this day.

If you are a homo, keep your sexual preferences to yourself, and stay out of my face. Back in the 80's I was at a SEG convention in New Orleans, and some friends and I decided to walk to a restaurant. A gay parade appeared, seemingly out of nowhere, and one of the paraders was made up in American Indian war paint but was otherwise nude. When he ran onto the sidewalk and attempted to rub his genitals on one of my friends, my friend punched him in the mouth so hard that he knocked out one of the Indian's teeth.

I was glad to see it happen.

A cop standing nearby ignored the whole thing, and we continued to the restaurant.

To this day, I remember that incident whenever I hear a homo moaning about his "rights" in an obvious attempt to suppress my own rights.

So whenever homos get in my face, I get right back into their faces. Activist homos are a filthy, disgusting bunch who should not be given a free pass by anyone.

At last it is time. Dr Who comes back to the sci fi channel in a 2.5 hour long special which starts at 8pm EDT. Be there or be square. I even told my girl that we would not go out on fridays while the doctor is on so that we could watch all the shows. Remember. A time lord always wins in the end. Always.

Don't watch it Roger. The show is to deep for you and you won't like the pain of trying to think. On saturday, I might discuss the show on OTDF, so listen for that instead.

Dr. Who was stupid 30 years ago. I can't believe it's still on.

Actually, yes I can.

How do you know? Just because they aren't licensed doesn't mean they can't copy CW. My officemate has no license at all but thanks to the military can probably copy better than I can.

I'm not licensed to do LOTS of things that I can do.

Many use "QSO" as a signifier of a "Voice" contact as well, so "why" couldn't you have a "QSO" with a "NO CODE" Tech? Now, if the question were a QSO with one on a band he wasn't licensed to use, then the answer "could" be NO. BUT - if he has a "Control Operator" there with him to allow his use of that band, then by all means - the answer is still "yes".

Its all in how it is looked at. Too many people split hairs.....

They had rows and rows of parts, and the rest of the store looked more like CC than RS. All I know is that an experimenter in Ottawa could get a lot of stuff that he/she needed.

And that's okay by me.

I didn't say I was going to "killfile" you. In fact, I neither nominated you nor seconded your nomination for the Golden Killfile -- I think I voted for you, though that was a tough field (both Tholenator and Warhol!) -- I told you you were nominated for an award that happens to have the word "killfile" in it, meaning you are worthy to be ignored by everyone, not that everyone has to killfile you. Remember, no one ever forced you to x-poast to AUK. You did that all by yourself.

Todd doesn't have internet, so he doesn't have an RRAP job like Markie.
He can't be making money off Omega One because the music and his language is so bad no one would dare buy advertising.

So I guess Todd's day job is to walk down to the mailbox to see if the welfare check came and to be on the lookout for the white FCC NAL van to show up. ROFL.

and host enema beer parties for the Omega One staff: Woger, Llooydie, Stevie, and Markie. Todd says his moms 8-track tape songs are good beer enema tunes!

Steve has a brain. Markie has a brain, but it doesn't work. Every time Steve or anyone else says something, Markie the parrot does a follow-up crap job on it. If Mark had something other than a mis-spelled five word phrase, maybe Steve wouldn't tease, but I haven't seen Mark get anything out right yet.

I am wondering becaues I have been having impure thoughts about Wisman and me in the dark at night after we were drinking a lot at the Shipwreck Lounge and went back over to his place. The thoughts scare me becaues I have always liked girls and little japanese kids under 12 and lolicon art. For example I wish I could get naked with Sailor Moon who is 12 and that makes me a normal guy. So why do I get all excited thinking about Wiseman in his jokey shorts now? Mark, can you help?

Indeed. Robesin has deviant thought patterns which indicate brain activity. I wonder why his marine career was curtailed?

So?

Did Robesin get to taste his own excrement from some other guy's lap like he said?

What useless brain dreams up that kind of stuff?

Self-control???

What kind of idiot posts about the taste of his own excrement from another guy's lap?

No, it wasn't. Robesin was busy accusing others of homosexuality and pedophilia. That is not peace.

Mark is, if nothing else, shameless. I understand fully why Dave Heil referred to Mark as the group "Myna Bird". For whatever it is that compels Mark to post sometimes hundreds of posts per diem, it is obvious that Mark is a total stranger to self-control. Like a Myna Bird, Mark feels as if he MUST squawk and comment often to each and every post he sees. He squawks that he is defending himself when, in reality, he is the major cause of most of the angst on RRAP. No wonder many in RRAP and elsewhere killfile him.
Yes, it WAS peaceful during Mark's hiatus. He should go away more often.

7093. online repeater directories

I needed to look up some repeater info today. So I went online and checked a few sites that listed them.

They were ALL awful. They weren't any easier to use that a book, like the directory the ARRL sells. There, you pick a band, pick a state, and then try to guess what repeaters might be nearby based on town names you might not know. I'm not expecting a book to be any better than that because it isn't something that has a programmable interface. But I would expect a web site to be better.

One of the sites, www.usrepeaters.com, did have the ability to sort the data based on some other fields. But really, is there any value in sorting them by callsign? I suppose there is some value in sorting them by frequency if you are trying to figure out what repeater might be coming in that you you only got part of the ID for. You could sort by PL/CTCSS tone access. Does anyone need that?

I believe I could do a much better job making a repeater listing site interface than ANY of the ones I have seen. But I don't have the data to display, so it wouldn't do any good. And even with a few people potentially submitting repeaters, no one would really see the benefits better programming could do until the list is nearly complete. And who would want to spend time submitting repeaters to a site that a lot way away from being complete.

He was? I didn't see that. Steve responded to Mork...nobody else so far as

2 stations are 130 miles away as the crow flies.

Using SSB on 6 meters - Is simplex communication possible with decent antennas?

What would be the approximate wattage needed?

You should be able to communicate using 6 meters up to 100 miles or so using SSB without any long range propagation conditions. A friend of mine caught an opening where he was able to communicate with another ham around 300 miles or so using SSB. It all depends on what you have for antennas, elevation of your station versus surrounding ones.

I regularly can hit several 2 meter repeaters from 60 to 75 miles away. However, that is factoring in relatively flat land versus where some areas may have a lot of hills that impede communications. The friend I was mentioning was using 2 meters one night a couple of weeks ago when conditions allowed him a long distance contact especially for six meters.

The important thing here to consider is what type of antenna you would be using. Obviously, a beam wound be the best situation but it all depends on your home environment including wives, landlords, etc. I've used SSB for quite a distance before so what you are proposing isn't out of the question. In fact, if you check out the DX Cluster you will find that many hams communicate with long distance stations even on 6 meters or 2 meters as well.

I've been able to use 2 meter FM in a car and easily hit a repeater 50 miles away, not to mention another north of me approximately 70 miles. So it is not out of the question, just depends on your operating conditions. I've never used more than 100 watts on 6 meters and 160 watts on two meters at any time.

Anything more than those power ranges, in my opinion, is overkill especially on the VHF amateur bands. Maybe at most 300 to 500 watts but the higher up you go on amps and wattage, you will pay dearly on the amps.

Mwhahahahahahha. That would have been a sight to see watching him cowering as someone was ready to rain down some justice on his shitty wouldn't surprise me that he ran and cowered.

Depends but I've done it on 50 watts. If conditions are good, it could take Telephony has saved magnitudes more lives than CW.

If you are CW only, you are not properly equipped to even attempt to save lives.

Hmmmmmm - my how we belabor a point. MAYDAY IN CW = SOS..... SOS is usually sent in those cases. SOS for the CW and Mayday for radiotelephone.
MAYDAY is "also" asked about in some RadioTelephone license exams for "marine" use and is even becoming part of the Fire service. There is a test specifically for "Mayday" and its uses. Mayday is "generally" used in "airplane" emergencies.

Hi Chris

From my own experience;

I use to have a regular contact Sydney to Canberra 280-300km on 2M SSB. The station antennas were maybe 13dBi at each each and good low noise preamps were used. I used 3 watts at the Sydney end.

It was about 70% copy at the Canberra end on average. Didnt take much of a lift to make it a lot better than that.

You are no doubt aware you can model this kind of thing using GPL path prediction software? You can enter your actual topography/path etc. if you want more info on this pls ask. I have left some output from these pgms on http://members.cox.net/vk2yqa but they dont exactly explain all the parameters.

Cheers Bob W5/VK2YQA

I am not aware of this software. Outputs are impressive. Looks like you can determine best antenna pattern. Any info you can give me on the software would be appreciated. I am new to Ham and studying for my license now. Will take test in 2 weeks.

Hi Chris

Well there are a few. I use to use UKWtools for quite a while. It is very simple and straight forward.

http://www.qslnet.de/member/g4klx/ - go to software and scroll down.

You will need at a minimum STRM3 data for your area. I modified the Linux version of the s/w to use SRTM1. (SRTM = shuttle radar topography mission - mapped the earths surface to get spot heights - data is freely available) You will also need to know your lat/lon..

Radio Mobile Deluxe is a much nicer output/more professional tool. It does take some major thinking to understand and get going. There is also a Yahoo newsgroup at http://groups.yahoo.com/group/Radio_Mobile_Deluxe

The download site for the pgm is;

http://www.cplus.org/rmw/english1.html

Once again you will need topo data but the pgm can be configureed to download what you need.

If you email me direct with your lat/lon or town etc I'll do a quick output on (say) 2m if you like.

Cheers Bob

Of course you didn't see it. Of course you think I embellish just a think it was peaceful when Mark took leave.

You are Robesin.
